

'She's a Devil in Disguise'

By

Shannon Stone

Copyright 2019/Empower777.com/All Rights Reserved

LEGAL NOTES

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, distributed, or transmitted in any form or by any means, including photocopying, recording, or other electronic or mechanical methods, without the prior written permission of the publisher, except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical reviews and certain other noncommercial uses permitted by copyright law.

Additional Legal Notice

This book is designed to provide information and motivation to readers. It is sold with the understanding that the publisher is not engaged to render any type of psychological, legal, or any other kind of professional advice. The content is the sole expression and opinion of its author, and not necessarily that of the publisher. No warranties or guarantees are expressed or implied by the publisher's choice to include any of the content in this volume. Neither the publisher nor the individual author(s) shall be liable for any physical, psychological, emotional, financial, or commercial damages, including, but not limited to, special, incidental, consequential or other damages. Our views and rights are the same: You are responsible for your own choices, actions, and results.

Table of Contents

Chapter One

Chapter Two

Chapter Three

Chapter Four

Chapter Five

Chapter Six

Chapter Seven

Chapter Eight

Chapter Nine

Chapter Ten

Chapter Eleven

Chapter Twelve

Chapter Thirteen

Chapter Fourteen

Chapter Fifteen

Chapter Sixteen

Chapter One

Who is Mr. Smith?

Mr. Smith is a very wealthy man. He was born in America, in the Midwest, and grew up in a middle class family. He worked hard all his life to create a safe, secure and extravagant lifestyle. His passion for business and creating fair and exciting transactions is the reason for his success. He gained a reputation of integrity by many business people all over the nation.

People knew if they were involved in a business deal with Mr. Smith that they would be treated with respect and kindness.

Mr. Smith loved America because it's still a land of opportunity and a land of freedom. He believes that a wealthy man can employ and help others more than a poor man can.

Mr. Smith believed that a person can accomplish great things without harming others. He gained a reputation as a tough negotiator but being fair to all concerned.

Mr. Smith is known to others as a kind man without any intentions or desires of harming others. Mr. Smith was married once many years ago, but his lovely wife died in a private plane crash, after a short time of being married. He never fathered any children.

Mr. Smith has been a single man for many years and he has certainly sowed a few wild oats. He enjoys a nice glass of red wine on occasion.

Mr. Smith is now approaching retirement age and lives in a large impressive 43 room mansion with 12 bathrooms and an underground garage that will park up to 30 cars if necessary. There is an elevator that will go from the garage up to the 1st or 2nd floor.

The house is too large for a single man, but it also includes a servant's quarters for six people plus guest bedrooms. He has a full time cook, a maid, a butler, two landscapers and a head housekeeper.

The head housekeeper is like the manager of the house. She takes care of all details concerning the house, such as; plumbing, electrical, painting, etc. She manages the staff and will call the appropriate professionals to solve any household issues and makes sure the house runs smoothly.

Mr. Smith also has a personal business assistant.

Mr. Smith has a large home office. It's a large room on the second floor of the mansion. Mr. Smith has had many important meetings in his office over the years. His personal on-premise chef is always prepared to provide delicious meals for Mr. Smith's business guests. He also provides overnight accommodations, if required. Mr. Smith treats his business associates like royalty. He also flies to other cities on occasion if a person to person meeting is necessary. Usually, Mr. Smith conducts most of his business matters by phone or email or by third party contacts such as his accountant, attorney or personal assistant.

There is a large balcony that over looks hundreds of green lush acres and big trees. Mr. Smith often sits on the balcony and ponders his past and his current activities.

The office walls of the office are plush cherry wood and dark wooden floors with oriental area carpets. Dark leather couches sit in the center of the room surrounding a large white marble coffee table. Several high back leather chairs are placed near the library of built in shelves holding a massive collection of books.

One large cherry wood desk for Mr. Smith and one desk for his assistant sits on the far end of the room. There is a small conference table with chairs, a built-in wet bar and bathroom with a hot tub.

On the opposite wall of the balcony is a large fireplace and mantel holding various picture of Mr. Smith standing with several notables. Mr. Smith also collects investment art– there are five large framed paintings hanging in the office.

Mr. Smith depends on his staff members to help manage his house and the beautiful estate. Mr. Smith permits many charity organizations to utilize his property for certain events.

Many people find their way out to the estate, but mostly to just view Mr. Smith's property - a reminder of our free enterprise system. Mr. Smith did not inherit his empire – he is a self made man.

Mr. Smith is well liked and loved by many people. He enjoys giving a portion of his wealth to trusted charities. Mr. Smith is a living example of hard work combined with freedom and giving to those who are deserving but less fortunate.

Mr. Smith's servants were all very loyal and enjoyed their positions. All the members of his staff resided on the premises and were glad to be part of Mr. Smith's organization.

One day, an important member of his staff is instantly killed by an unknown assailant. She is in a shopping mall parking lot and a person walked up and shot her twice in the head and fled the scene. The police are baffled as to why it happened. It is his head housekeeper.

Mr. Smith is greatly saddened. He is good friends with Molly and her loss is extremely hard on him. Her death affected Mr. Smith greatly. Although Mr. Smith is deeply effected by the death of Molly, he must find a replacement.

He isn't sure he could find someone like Molly. She was an amazing woman. One day, after a series of interviews, he decided on a woman who came highly recommended. She appeared to be perfect for the job.

Chapter Two

Who is Hillary?

Mr. Smith hires a new head housekeeper. Her name is Hillary. She has a pleasing personality and appears to know exactly what to say and how to say it.

Hillary is well spoken and smart. She appears to be very kind, gracious and polite. These are just a few of the qualities Mr. Smith seeks when hiring a member of his staff.

Unfortunately, Mr. Smith hired a very deceitful and dishonest woman. Hillary is able to slip through Mr. Smith's radar. It's not Mr. Smith's fault – she is a professional liar. Hillary hides her deceitful past. She's been involved in many unspeakable acts. Hillary is a fraud.

She always provides a fake smile when necessary and will appear to have a pleasant positive attitude. She will usually do and say whatever it takes to get what she wants. Hillary is a con artist.

Very few people know Hillary's true personality and spirit. During past years, she's accumulated other 'evil' people, similar to her. They have various skills and professions. All these dark people are greedy narcissistic criminals hiding their intentions within the cracks of society.

Hillary is a secret Trojan horse inside Mr. Smith's empire.

During the next few weeks, Hillary works very hard for Mr. Smith, but behind Mr. Smith's back, she's scheming a plan. Plan?

Hillary secretly talks with member's of the staff. She is testing their character and their loyalty to Mr. Smith. She discreetly has discussions with the butler, the two landscapers, the cook and the maid.

Hillary always had visions of owning an empire like Mr. Smith. However, Hillary's methods of operation were unlike most honest people.

If Hillary is to be diagnosed by a psychiatrist, then she would definitely be labeled a psychopath. She desperately wants to live a lavish lifestyle but she prefers to simply steal it.

Psychopaths are seldom creative people – most psychopaths slither through life stealing the creativity and efforts from others. They have no empathy or compassion for others – however, they can fool many people by acting as though they do. Psychopaths learn to mimic other people who have healthy human emotions. Psychopaths are actors playing a part.

In the past, Hillary has stolen many things from people, she has also murdered those who were in her way. Her method of criminal operation is to always create plausible deniability. She's a cruel and diabolical woman.

As the years go by, Hillary is bitter because she's never been able to live the high rolling life she so desperately wants. Hillary likes to impress others – she fantasizes having power over others.

This is her big chance to steal an empire. She devised a plan with the assistance of others. Hillary knows that this time she will have to share some of her ill-gotten proceeds with her dishonest associates.

Hillary's mission is to gain the trust of Mr. Smith. Her mission is to eventually gain control of his estate, assets, bank accounts and live the life she dreamed about.

After discussing her devious plan with the servants. She promised them many things that they were not getting at the time. She began by using the divide and conqueror method. She must secretly slander Mr. Smith to others.

She tells them that Mr. Smith is very wealthy and is not the gentle man he appears to be. She says he can pay them much more than he does – she tells them that he's a greedy man. Hillary tells them – IF I control this estate – we can all live the life of our dreams. I will pay everyone much more and I have a plan to do it. I need your help to implement the plan.

As head housekeeper, Hillary has much authority and the servants know it. After many secret discussions, Hillary is able to convince three of the servants about her plan – it took many days of talking and she is able to tap their greed.

Two of the servants totally disagreed and did not think it is fair to Mr. Smith and they were happy with their life.

Within two weeks, one of the servants died of food poisoning.

Chapter Three

Trust

Mr. Smith trusts Hillary because she comes highly recommended and so far she showed no signs of negligence or laziness. Hillary does everything to convince Mr. Smith that he made the right choice. Several times, she has gone beyond the call of duty and Mr. Smith is impressed.

Hillary helps Mr. Smith by choosing the right servant to replace the maid that unfortunately died of food poisoning. Mr. Smith appreciated the extra help Hillary is happy to do. Hillary quickly replaces the staff member with someone she knew will be loyal to her scheme.

Mr. Smith is slowly gaining more and more trust for Hillary. She is being granted several confidential issues concerning Mr. Smith's estate and businesses. Hillary convinces Mr. Smith she is smart and can handle more duties. Her plan is to become his private confidant and his personal assistant.

A few days later, Mr. Smith mentioned that he misplaced his watch. He says to Hillary it is expensive and his watch is very sentimental to him. Hillary says, "I'm so sorry to hear that – I'll keep it on my mind".

The next day, Hillary came to Mr. Smith carrying in her hands his missing watch. She says, "I have bad news – she says she found it in one of the servant's rooms. It is hid under the mattress." Mr. Smith demanded to know who it is. Hillary, says, "I don't like making enemies, Mr. Smith."

Mr. Smith says, “I appreciate your concern, but I can’t have a thief residing on these premises.”

Hillary says, “Ok, I understand It is the butler, Gregory.” Mr. Smith is shocked because he trusted his butler who had been with him for several years. Gregory often doubled as Mr. Smith’s chauffer as well. Mr. Smith became angry and told Hillary to fire him and replace Gregory as soon as possible.

Gregory, the butler, is disappointed because he is actually very loyal to Mr. Smith, but he feared Hillary. He knew he could not prove his innocence. The butler left quietly and is warned and threatened to keep his mouth shut about Hillary’s scheme. Hillary replaced Gregory with another man she knew will be loyal to her. His name is George.

All of the servants are now part of Hillary’s devious plan. Mr. Smith has no idea that he is surrounded by enemies – all controlled and dominated by Hillary, the head-housekeeper.

Hillary told the servants to be patient and smile as nothing is happening. Hillary is quickly putting the finishing touches on her scheme. All the servants are happy and can’t wait to get their huge cash injection and they’re already spending the money in their minds.

It’s Spring time. A charity organizer came to Mr. Smith and asked if they could utilize a small portion of his property for an Easter Egg hunt for several of the orphanages in the area. Mr. Smith says, “Of course!”

The head charity organizer arrived at Mr. Smith's house on the day planned. She proclaimed her appreciation to Mr. Smith. Hillary is standing next to Mr. Smith. Hillary told the organizer that Mr. Smith's staff would gladly help in any way possible. (Hillary is taking control.)

Hillary called for a secret meeting with the staff. She says, "These damn kids are going to be on the property all f*ing day. It's important these f*ing kids have fun." Hillary hates children.

As soon as the children arrived, Mr. Smith walks outside to greet them. Mr. Smith loves children and always regretted not having a family. He took time to shake their small hands and give many of them hugs and wishes them all happy Easter. He had an Easter Sunday spiritual meeting but would be returning in a few hours. Mr. Smith left the property.

Easter day came to an end and the Easter Hunt party was a big success.

The organizer of the Easter Hung asked the children to clean up the mess on the property. She made a game out of it. The children had fun – even while they cleaned up the mess. The children scampered around and picked up all the effects of their party. 145 children can create quite a mess. It is the standard aftermath of a large children's party. They did a good job cleaning up the property. It is perfect.

Mr. Smith returned later that afternoon to the property and it is just as he left it. He expected a big mess, but it is spotless. He is pleased.

Hillary lied to Mr. Smith and says, “It was fast hard work, but the staff and I cleaned the area after the children left. They left one heck of a mess, but I wanted to make sure the mess is cleaned up before you returned.”

Mr. Smith says, “Thanks Hillary, Good job!”

Chapter Four

Hillary Gets a Promotion

One month later.

Clare is Mr. Smith's personal assistant. She's been with Mr. Smith for many years and is very loyal. She admires Mr. Smith.

Clare needs her car repaired. She drives her car to a local mechanic. The mechanic said the issue is minor and it can be fixed like new.

The next day . . .

Clare is happy to get her car fixed. She's driving back to the estate – however, she is killed in a car crash. Clare's car drove straight off one of the highest cliffs in the area.

Clare died from the impact and her body is burned so bad she is barely recognized. It is a mystery to the authorities as to why Clare's car drove off the cliff. They suspected she was texting.

Clare's death is big sad surprise for Mr. Smith. He and his personal assistant, Clare, were great friends for many years. It is an emotional and crushing blow to Mr. Smith. He sits in his office with his head in his hands – first Molly, the maid and now Clare!

Hillary went to Mr. Smith and offered her sympathies and offered her extra assistance if needed.

The next day, Mr. Smith requests a private meeting with Hillary. He explained to Hillary that he needs a person that he can trust to be his right hand.

After much thought, he says “I believe that person is you, Hillary.”

Mr. Smith explains to Hillary, “I have come to realize you have many more talents other than being a head housekeeper. As my personal assistant, I will be placing my trust in you – do you feel you can handle or even want this much responsibility?”

Hillary says, ‘Mr. Smith, I appreciate the trust you already have in me and I promise not to let you down.’

Mr. Smith says, “I want you to hire a person to take your place as head housekeeper. This will allow you to have more time to work with me in my office and learn many of the business details much quicker. OK?”

Hillary says, “I understand. I’ll have a new replacement for me in a few days.”

Mr. Smith says, “thanks, that will be great.”

Hillary makes a call and within two days, she has a woman who is totally loyal to her – someone she’s known for many years. The woman is happy to be part of Hillary’s scheme.

A new head housekeeper is hired.

Hillary is a woman in her late 40s. Again, she’s very well spoken and very confident. She’s now in the catbird seat. She’s privy to many business dealings, accounting and many of Mr. Smith’s business contacts.

It's time for Hillary to launch the 2nd phase of her scheme.

Hillary is planting a few seeds. Whenever she talks to any of Mr. Smith's contacts she cleverly befriends them with her gracious and personable personality.

Mr. Smith's contacts are soon liking her and they are quick to trust the words of Hillary. When it is applicable, she will make small hints that Mr. Smith is becoming very forgetful and that she is happy to assist when he forgets something.

She calls one contact and says, "Hi, I just want to make sure you received the funds that is wired to you – I wasn't sure if Mr. Smith called you – sometimes he forgets."

The contact says, "Yes, it came through loud and clear, Hillary. Thanks for calling."

Hillary is gaining much trust among Mr. Smith's contacts. She is quick to send them birthday cards, anniversary cards, etc. The contact says, "I've never received a birthday card from Mr. Smith in the past - this came as a surprise."

Hillary says, "Well, I found out your birthday and I wanted you to know you were not forgotten and you are appreciated." The contact says, "Oh, thank you Hillary, it means a lot to me."

Hillary starts to slowly make herself more desirable as the weeks go by to not only Mr. Smith but to many of the business contacts are sold on Hilary's gracious personality. She's being patient as her plan is being implemented. She's right on schedule.

Mr. Smith flew to California for a business meeting and to visit a few friendly associates - he is gone for about about 10 days.

While he is gone, Hillary loses a few pounds and has plastic surgery.

She took two weeks off to recuperate. Hillary's plan is to look sexier and more feminine after all, Mr. Smith is a single man.

Chapter Five

Three months later . . .

Hillary Sleeps with Mr. Smith

Hillary is about 5'4" and has lost about 30 lbs and is looking quite attractive. She is now height and weight proportionate. She now has perky new fake breasts with cleavage. Her hips are rounded with a little extra padding. Her full lips are filled with collegian injections to give her additional sexuality. Her frosted hair color discreetly hides her graying hair. The lipo suction thinned her thighs.

Mr. Smith has often complimented Hillary on her new appearance. Hillary always accepts his compliments while acting humble and gracious.

Mr. Smith and Hillary are working late in the office. It's a Friday night. Hillary is dressed in a short skirt and almost see through blouse. She suggested they have a glass of wine to celebrate a successful business deal that Mr. Smith is able to accomplish.

They are both happy it turned out so well for everyone concerned. Mr. Smith says, "We worked hard, but the company earned a profit of about 9 million dollars."

Hilary says, "Yes, I'm very proud of you!"

Hillary pours them each a glass of red wine. They step out on the balcony. It is a full moon, clear skies and the night is clear. She holds her glass to his and says, “Cheers!”

Hillary moves closer to Mr. Smith and says, “Mr. Smith, you’re a handsome man, why didn’t you ever marry again?”

Mr. Smith says, “Oh, I’ve gotten close but no cigar.”

She moves closer to Mr. Smith. He stands with his glass of wine and Hillary leans up to softly kiss Mr. Smith. Mr. Smith kisses her back. Hillary whispers to him, “I want to be with you tonight.”

Mr. Smith gently replies, “Hillary, I’ve never slept with any member of my staff.”

Hillary says, “I understand, but I feel very close to you – I feel safe when I’m in your presence.”

Mr. Smith reluctantly bends his rules.

The next morning, Hillary says, “Mr. Smith, I do not want last night to take away from our business relationship or our trusting friendship.”

Mr. Smith says, “Oh, come on Hillary, call me Joe. I appreciate your comment – but don’t worry, we are fine and I really enjoyed last night – it was an incredible experience.”

Mr. Smith gives Hillary a kiss on her forehead and says, “My respect for women goes beyond her skin – you seem to have a beautiful spirit and that means a lot to me, Hillary.”

Hillary smiled and says, “Thank you Joe – that means a lot coming from you. I think you’re a wonderful man.”

Hillary is a lesbian – she did something last night that went totally against her sexual identity. The sexual experience was totally disgusting to her and she almost became physically ill.

Hillary is almost sure ‘it’ will never happen again. Hillary seduced Mr. Smith in order to mentally and emotionally bond herself to him and it appears to have worked.

Chapter Six

Hillary's Scheme is Working

Hillary has just initiated her third phase of her scheme.

A crooked 'lawyer friend' helped Hillary set up several Canadian bank accounts. The bank accounts are under the name of a foundation and three holding accounts - LLCs. Only Hillary will control these secret accounts.

Mr. Smith is now giving Hillary the permission to wire and accept fund transfers. Millions of dollars in transactions happen through out each month. Mr. Smith deals in a variety of business transactions – mostly large real estate transactions and oil and gas. He may occasionally purchase a small corporation if it can be turned for a profit. Mr. Smith usually retains the mineral rights to any properties he purchases.

Mr. Smith is on a short list of investors who is called when a developer or land investment company wish to buy or sell. If the risk is low and the profit potential is there, then Mr. Smith will negotiate and the business process begins. The point is; there are so many transactions happening, Mr. Smith can't possibly keep track of it all. This is why he needed a right hand or personal assistant.

He has an idea of the transactions, but does not know the exact amount of money being funneled from one entity to another. Hillary is now able to close on many of the deals by herself. Mr.

Smith is surprised that Hillary has learned so much so quickly. He's impressed.

He is glad to have someone like Hillary at his side along with his trusted accountant to manage the details.

Hillary is having an issue with his long term accountant – who is very loyal to Mr. Smith and keeps a watchful eye over the business transactions and transferring of funds from one account to another. The accountant, Dave, is an old and very close trusted friend of Mr. Smith.

One day, Hillary drove into town. She met with the accountant, Dave, at an out of the way restaurant. She told Dave it is to be a private conversation.

Hillary knew she could never convince Dave to be part of her scheme – so, she decided to do something else. When the accountant, Dave, went to the restroom she dropped an over-dose of opioids in his coffee. It is almost tasteless.

Once he finishes his coffee – it will probably take the opioids about 20 minutes to take affect and may induce a heart attack. She does not want to be near him when it happens.

She engages small talk just long enough for the opioids to be ingested. Dave finishes his coffee. Hillary goes to the restroom and returns saying, she's sorry but she has an emergency phone call and must leave.

Dave, the accountant, says, Ok. We can do this another day. He pays the bill and they walk to their cars. Hillary and Dave drive away. Dave drives about 5 miles down the road.

Dave's car swerves off the road and crashes into a tree, killing him instantly.

Hillary arrives back at the estate about 4 pm.

Hillary walks into the home office and Mr. Smith is sitting at his desk. He says, "Hi Hillary, how did it go?"

She says, "the doc says that I'm fine and he suggested I drink more water."

Hillary told Mr. Smith she had a doctor's appointment.

It will be a matter of time and Mr. Smith will hear the bad news of his friend, Dave, the accountant. Hillary does not know the accountant had crashed into a tree just minutes after they ended their luncheon.

She remains patient and waits. After two hours, she calls the accountants office and asks for Dave. The secretary says, "Hi Hillary, no, he's not in right now, may I take a message?"

Hillary says, "No, that's fine, I'll call back." This phone call let her know that the secretary knows nothing about the meeting she had earlier with Dave.

The next day, Hillary calls Dave's office. The secretary answered and says in a quivering almost sobbing voice, "I'm sorry Hillary, Dave was killed in a car crash." Hillary says, "Oh my god – I'll inform Mr. Smith."

Secretary says, "Yeah, our office is in total chaos and we're so sad."

Hillary says, "Yeah, I can only imagine, I'm so sorry."

Hillary goes to Mr. Smith and she says, "I have some bad news." He says, "Oh, it can't be that bad, is it?"

Hillary says, "Dave, the accountant was just killed in a car crash, Joe."

Mr. Smith doesn't say a word. He slowly walks over to a chair by the large bay window - sits down in silence. He just stares out the window. Hillary could see a tear drop down Mr. Smith's cheek.

Hillary smiles but remains silent.

Chapter Seven

New Accountant – New Attorney

The next day.

Hillary announces to Mr. Smith that Dave, the past accountant, had provided her with a phone number of an accounting firm he trusted many weeks ago. He mentioned the firm in passing and I wrote it down.

She hands the name and phone number to Mr. Smith. She asked, “Do you know this accounting firm?”

He says, “No, but if Dave recommended them, then call and hire them.”

Hillary had already made a deal with a crooked accounting firm several weeks ago. Her crooked lawyer recommended them because they are experts at laundering and hiding funds. She called the new accountant and told them that she is ready to hire them.

They are set to go, once they have instructions.

New Attorney

three weeks later . . .

Hillary went to Mr. Smith. She says, “Can I say something without you getting too upset?” Mr. Smith, “Heck, I don’t know...try me.”

She says, “Well, I’m reluctant because I know you guys are good friends.”

Mr. Smith says, “Oh good gosh Hillary just tell me!”

She says, “Do you remember the documents I dropped off at your attorney’s office the other day?”

He says, “Yes.”

She acted coy looking down. “Well, how can I say this ... well, there is no easy way to say it...he came on to me and tried to kiss me.”

Mr. Smith says, “Well, that damn hound dog – I’m sorry.”

She says, “Well, there is something else . . . he forced his hand up my skirt and I had to swat his hand away.”

Mr. Smith says, “Oh my god, that’s horrible.”

Hillary is still using her little quivering voice, “ I know, but that’s not all. He tried to rape me in his office – he kept saying, “You know you want it!” I managed to break away – he even ripped my panties off.”

Mr. Smith says, “We should call the police and have him thrown in jail.”

Hillary says, “No, I just want to forget it and move on – but I won’t be going back to his office.”

She says, “There’s more. . . he says, if I told you what he did that he would deny it happened and you would believe him more than me.”

Mr. Smith says, “Well, not only will you not be going back to his office, but we are getting a new attorney.”

I had no idea he is like that – he’s a married man too.”

Mr. Smith says, “That son-of-a-bitch!” She says in a quivering voice, “I don’t think we can trust him and besides Joe, I don’t want any man touching me but you.”

Naturally, Hillary lied – the act never happened.

Mr. Smith says, “I’m so sorry that happened to you. You’re a good woman and you don’t deserve that type of treatment – matter of fact no woman does.”

Hillary says in her quivering little girl voice, “Thank you Joe, you’re one man in a million.”

The next day . . .

Hillary says, “I have good news, our new accountant gave me the name of an attorney he trusts to take care of your legal matters and I think this new attorney will be much more attentive to your needs.”

Mr. Smith says, “That is good news – give him a call!”

Hillary almost has total control of Mr. Smiths empire. She has full access to a crooked attorney and a crooked accountant. Her Canadian bank accounts are set up and a personal staff of people who are all in on her scheme.

Mr. Smith is now alone inside a den of poisonous and extremely dangerous vipers and has no clue.

Chapter Eight

Major Land Deal

Mr. Smith is about to finalize a land deal that will be sold to a large shopping store developer. Mr. Smith owns the property. It's a fair deal and both parties are happy with the transaction.

Mr. Smith requests Hillary to work with the title companies to make sure all funds are wired to the appropriate accounts. Hillary is now taking instructions from her crooked accountant.

He will make sure the funds are convoluted and missing funds will go almost undetected. Each time Hillary wires funds there are certain amounts being funneled to her Canadian accounts. Mr. Smith has no idea.

Within only 16 weeks, Hillary is able to secretly transfer over 22 million dollars directly into her Canadian bank accounts. Is she done? No, she will not be satisfied until she has it all.

In the mean time, it is very important that Mr. Smith remain happy, alive and well.

Hillary catches Mr. Smith at the right time when he is feeling nostalgic and emotional. She says, "Joe, what will happen to me and your estate if something happens to you?" I do not want you to ever leave us. I'm so sick of all the deaths these past few months. Anything can happen. I'm scared."

Mr. Smith says, “Yes, you’re right, Hillary, I need to draw up a living trust. I’ve been meaning to do it because I have no family.

Ask the attorney to draw up a living trust as soon as possible.” Hillary says, “OK, I will tomorrow - Who shall be the Trustee and beneficiaries?”

Mr. Smith says, “Many living trusts place the bank as a Trustee – but I don’t trust bankers.

My closest most trusted associates is Dave, and he’s dead and the other one is my attorney and now he’s a rapist! Hillary, I have come to trust you very much and I know you’ll do the right thing. Let’s place you as the Trustee – I’m sure you will carry out my wishes.”

Hillary says, “Are you serious?” Mr. Smith says “Yes, mam!”

The next day . . .

Hillary requested a living trust be created by “her” attorney – as requested by Mr. Smith. One week later, it is finalized and Mr. Smith reviewed the trust.

He signed the Living Trust – requesting Hillary to be the Trustee. Inside the Trust, Hillary will be in total control of the estate, bank accounts and all properties upon the death of the settlor, Mr. Smith.

Hillary is given an even more secure “catbird” seat.

Her plan is working. Her scheme is almost finished.

Inside the Trust there is a clause that specifically and clearly states that the Trustee may do what is necessary to run the business of the estate and the Trustee shall receive total power of attorney over all facets of the estate and assets, in the event the settlor (Mr. Smith) dies, or is declared as incapacitated or is unavailable for a minimum of 30 days – only then, it will be necessary for the Trustee to have automatic power of attorney over all property, bank accounts and will perform their duties to the sole discretion of the Trustee. Mr. Smith wishes to give nearly all of his net worth to his trusted charities and Hillary is to receive one million dollars.

Mr. Smith is foolishly trusting Hillary.

He signs and dates the Living Trust. Hillary makes copies – places a copy in the house vault and an extra copy is placed in her brief case. Hillary is furious that Mr. Smith only wants to give her one million dollars – however, she's the Trustee and is in total control and can do just about anything she wants to do. She sends a signed copy of the Living Trust to her attorney for safe keeping.

Chapter Nine

The Dinner Party

Three months later . . .

Hillary says, “Joe, let’s have a dinner party.”

Mr. Smith says, “Good idea, that sounds good!

Hillary says, “Let’s invite those you feel closest to - I want to meet some of your friends in person.”

Mr. Smith says, “Well, I don’t have many close friends – but I will provide a list of people I enjoy speaking to and those I have come to like.”

Mr. Smith says, “Make the dinner plans on a Saturday night – two weeks from today. This should give them plenty of notice.”

Hillary called all the people on the list and also sent them written invitations. All the invitations were created on Mr. Smith’s letterhead. She now has a list of those people who are closest to Mr. Smith.

Hillary’s scheme is almost flawless. Hillary is cleverly smoozing Mr. Smith. She’s very attentive and is treating Mr. Smith as though he is the only person on earth. She’s smothering him with affection. As a lesbian, this is very difficult for her to do.

Two weeks later . . .

The dinner party is a success and Hillary moves closer. She meets more of Mr. Smith’s associates. There are 4 couples and three single men. Hillary is a big hit at the party. She smoozes all the guests. Mr. Smith is very proud of her.

What Mr. Smith does not know is; Hillary is setting up the next phase of her scheme.

Chapter Ten

The Rolls Royce

The next day – Hillary tells Mr. Smith that she will be taking the Rolls to run a couple of errands. She puts on her gloves and has a member of her staff, George, follow her.

Hillary goes into town. She uses an encrypted cell phone. This is a phone where none of her calls can be tracked. She calls an illegal chop-shop provided by her crooked attorney. These are mostly illegal Mexicans who purchase stolen cars. They will file off all the vehicle identification markings – then prepare the Rolls to be resold or shipped to Mexico by truck. Hillary collects $55,000 cash for the Rolls Royce however, it's worth about $200,000.

Hillary also calls a local storage facility. She explains that she is out of town at the time, but needs a storage unit so her stuff can be moved inside.

She says, “ I have one problem, I cannot provide ID at this time. A member of my staff will pay you five years in advance, in cash, when he arrives. I do not like small monthly bills and I want the unit to be secure. Can I be assured your premises are safe and secure?”

He says, “Yes Mam, I live on the premises.”

She says, “OK, fair enough.”

The storage owner says, “When will your person arrive?”

“He can be there very quickly. Will you give him a gate code today?”

He says, “Yes, of course.” Hillary says, “Thanks, I appreciate it.

Hillary and George drive to the storage unit. George puts on a hat, and a fake mustache and goes inside the office. He pays the storage unit owner his cash payment. It’s about $6,000. The storage unit owner is a happy man. George gets back into his car and uses his code to open the gate.

George opens the storage unit using gloves – the unit is way in the back of the storage facility. Hillary will be placing many of Mr. Smith’s personal items in storage for a quick ‘hide’, such as; clothes, shoes, etc.

Anything that will identify him will be burned.

No matter what happens, enough time will have lapsed where it will be very difficult to connect the dots and everyone involved will be long gone.

Mr. Smith did not have many close friends and no relatives – the close friends he did have are dead. Many people will miss Mr. Smith – but virtually nobody will actually inquire or try to find him. Hillary made sure of it.

Chapter Eleven

The Trunk and the Ocean

That evening, Hillary and Mr. Smith are relaxing at the office. They are small talking. It is about 8 pm. She mixes Mr. Smith an over-dose of sleeping pills in his glass of wine. It didn't take long and Mr. Smith is out like a light on the couch.

A few days ago, Hillary found a large clothing trunk in the attic of the big mansion. She calls for George to haul it down from the attic.

Mr. Smith weighs about 200 lbs, however, his body can be folded inside the large sturdy clothing trunk. George tightly wraps the trunk with chains and padlocks to keep it closed and nobody could open it.

Mr. Smith has a small landing strip on the property for the landing of small planes. Hillary set up a small plane contact through, Doug, her crooked attorney and he called a drug smuggler he knew.

He says, "This guy can land anywhere and almost anytime – he says, it's all set up – he will be landing on Mr. Smith's landing strip in about two hours."

George met Hillary with a moving dolly. George and another member of the staff helped roll the trunk down stairs and out to the grassy mound near the landing strip.

The trunk is loaded onto the small plane. George stayed behind. Hillary flew with the pilot. He is instructed to fly Hillary to a small air strip just west of a particular boat dock. It is a short 30 minute flight. Hillary says good-bye to the pilot and says, "I'll see you back here in about two hours."

There is a white panel van and two large men waiting to drive Hillary and the trunk to the boat dock. They load the trunk inside the van and they drove two miles to a near by boat dock.

The two men load the heavy trunk.

Hillary and the three men take off across the bay and out into the dark. The boat is crashing through the ocean waves and heads out into open waters - about 40 miles. According to the ocean depth instrument – it is about a half a mile deep.

Hillary says, "This is perfect – stop the boat!" Hillary and the three men push the large trunk over the side of the boat.

The large trunk sunk rapidly and disappeared almost instantly. It drops to the dark ocean floor and will probably lay there for hundreds of years.

If there is no body found, then there is no murder. Mr. Smith will simply be a man who disappeared. Mr. Smith will be gone forever and will never be seen again.

Hillary didn't even say good bye.

Chapter Twelve

Hillary Liquidates

One week later . . .

Hillary calls a few of Mr. Smith's friends and asks if they have had any contact with him. Naturally, they all are very nice, polite and gracious.

She says this is not like him to disappear without me knowing – plus he's so forgetful. Naturally, he flies to business meetings all the time, but I usually know where he's going and when. His Rolls is gone." One friend says, "oh don't worry about it – he may be out sewing a few wild oats."

These phone calls are ways to create dates, times and witnesses and to allow Hillary to show concern to others.

Hillary is just biding her time. She answers the phone and discussing many things with land owners and buyers – but has not made a single transaction. She's waiting for the go ahead.

There are only two laptops and two phones that Mr. Smith and Hillary utilize. If the staff, accountant and the attorney talk on phones, then they talk in code - they provide just enough info so the other person will understand.

Hillary receives many calls asking for Mr. Smith. Each time she explains he is not in at the moment and takes a message.

Three weeks later . . .

Hillary's attorney calls and gives her the "Go" signal. He says, in certain coded words that she should casually begin liquidating. Do not act desperate – just take the highest bids.

The accountant is handling much of the transfers of funds. All funds were being diverted to Hillary's Canadian bank accounts.

She had funds wired to her attorney's secret bank account for his current and future expertise 5 million dollars and she wired the accountant 5 million dollars for current and future services in advance.

She paid her staff – $250,000 dollars cash each. They quickly packed and dispersed into different parts of the country. She made sure not to cheat these people in the event she may require their services in the future.

Within a few weeks, Hillary liquidated all properties and all oil well interests. She even sold the mansion and hundreds of acres of lush beautiful land. She also sold all his investment paintings to art dealers. Antique furniture, lamps, Asian carpets and beautiful tables that Mr. Smith had collected over the years was sold. All of Mr. Smith's life assets were sold and turned into cash.

All total, Hillary stole over 173 million dollars.

Hillary put on an act for the police. She says, "I'm concerned about Mr. Smith – I need to know where he is – he won't answer his phone!"

Police asked, "Does he usually turn off his phone?"

Hillary says, "Well, yes he does, all the time – it's away for him to unwind – however, he seldom keeps it off this long."

The police are convinced that Mr. Smith left the mansion and is driving his Rolls Royce. The police are convinced Mr. Smith has obviously turned off his phone for some peace and quiet – maybe taking an extended private vacation. You know how these rich tycoons are, right?

The police told Hillary that it is not a crime for a man to leave his home without telling anyone. His credit card has been traced and found being used in three different states.

The police are convinced Mr. Smith is fine.

Chapter Thirteen

Happy Hillary

Once Mr. Smith's entire empire, including his estate is sold, Hillary quickly move to Manhattan. She resides in a luxury high rise apartment in New York City. She also has a new young girlfriend.

Hillary and her team of scoundrels plan to take a nice long comfy break and wait for their next opportunity. Hillary and her young girlfriend are having fun with their shopping sprees and dining in Manhattan's finest restaurants.

One evening, Hillary and her girlfriend are drinking wine in a local New York City upscale tavern. Hillary tips the bartender a crisp $100 bill - the two women left the tavern walking hand in hand, laughing and giggling.

Hillary and her girlfriend stood at the street corner – but Hillary had one to many glasses of wine - she stumbled off the curb into the path of a huge speeding city bus.

Hillary's body is hit with such force, that she is decapitated and two limbs were ripped from her body. Several people watched the grotesque scene – her girlfriend let out a blood curdling scream and dropped to her knees, sobbing. Hillary's head is discovered two blocks away laying face up.

A man casually walks up wearing a long black over-coat, a black hat with a wide brim and smoking a pipe. He looks down at Hillary's bloody face. He says, "Was it worth it, Hillary? Karma can certainly be a bitch, huh?” The mysterious man slowly walks away smoking his pipe. He quickly disappears among the crowded side-walk of Manhattan.

Hillary is dead. Her body parts are spread all over the crowded Manhattan street. Her blood stains remain for many weeks.

Yes, Karma is a bitch sometimes, even for poor Hillary.

Is stealing all that money worth it? Hillary stole millions of dollars and it's all stashed away in secret Canadian bank accounts that nobody will find.

This is the story about a psychopathic parasite who never created anything –she stole the efforts and creativity of a man's life of hard work and dedication plus she murdered a good man for no reason other than GREED.

The devil is a liar and has no loyalty to anyone, not even to Hillary.

Beware, planet earth is the devil's playground.

Chapter Fourteen

Who is the Mysterious Man?

About two years prior, very powerful people approached Mr. Smith. They announced they selected him to be the next president of the United States. Mr. Smith knew of these people and he was not impressed with them. They are very powerful dark individuals, even though they are worth billions of dollars.

They chose Mr. Smith because of his honesty, impeccable reputation and his business integrity. Mr. Smith would be an excellent candidate. Plus he has no skeletons in his closet. None at all! One thing is missing. Mr. Smith is not married. This is a flaw for anyone running for President of the United States.

Mr. Smith has about a year to provide these rich dark people with his decision to run as President. In the mean time, these dark billionaires begin implementing their plan. They requested a woman named Hillary to get a job on his staff as soon as possible and get as close to Mr. Smith as possible. Her mission is to marry him. Hillary is a corrupt woman, but they knew they could possibly control her and she could spy on Mr. Smith and relay information back to them before and during his presidency – if he were to be president.

In the mean time, a couple of months later, Hillary becomes a staff member on Mr. Smith's estate.

After a few months, Mr. Smith receives a private message – he is to meet someone for a private meeting. He meets the person at an out-of-the-way country café. They sat in a table in the back. The person Mr. Smith will be sitting with is wearing a white ball cap.

This person or messenger would not divulge his name but he secretly told Mr. Smith, not to trust the people who are requesting him to be president. He says, their plan is to make you the next president, but you will soon be assassinated.

They know the man they want to be president could never be elected as president, but YOU can. When you're assassinated, then their man will be the president of the United States within hours after you're murdered.

They need a powerful man with a great reputation who is not a career politician. They believe the American people will elect a man like you.

He continued. Hillary, your new staff member is part of their organization, she is planted there. Her mission is to spy on you.

Mr. Smith says, "How can I trust you?"

He says, "You can't trust anyone at this point, Mr. Smith. All you can do is follow your gut."

The mystery man said, "My team would like for you to go through with Hillary's plan. We have planted a member of our team, named "George" on your staff, your new chauffeur – he works for us. Hillary believes he's loyal to her, but he's not. No worries, George will be loyal to us and to you. He's there to protect you."

Chapter Fifteen

The White Hat Plan to Save Mr. Smith's Life

The white hat told Mr. Smith, it is our plan for you to disappear with a new identity. Why? Because if you reject these people for their plan for you to be president, then they will destroy you financially and probably murder you.

Mr. Smith is instructed to go along with the flow. Allow Hillary to think she's in control. Mr. Smith has much to ponder – but decides to go along with the white hat's plan.

Hillary is corrupt. She decided not to work the original plan as requested by the black hats. Hillary decides to work her own plan. When the black hats find out – they will take care of Hillary.

Her plan is to rob Mr. Smith of all his wealth and kill him in the process, then she will vanish. Plus, making Mr. Smith disappear as well.

The White Hat's advice is for Mr. Smith to disappear but still be alive. The Canadian bank president where Hillary has been stashing all of Mr. Smith's funds has been instructed to put a hold on a majority of the funds until other wise instructed. The bank president will do as instructed, due to the nature of the people who requested the action.

Mr. Smith will be given a new name – a new identity, new ID and new passport. And a secret bank account. Mr. Smith will be gone forever, but a new man will appear.

What the Black Hats did not formulate into their plan is that Hillary would double cross them and work her own devious plan. As it turns out, Hillary helped Mr. Smith to disappear. The authorities and the black hats all think Mr. Smith is gone without a trace.

Chapter Sixteen

What About George and the Large Trunk?

Mr. Smith is lucky enough to catch Hillary dropping something in his wine glass. After Hillary hands the wine with a lethal dose of sleeping pills, she left the room for awhile. He poured the wine and contents into a potted plant. Then he pretended to fall asleep on the couch.

Hillary had instructed George to get a large trunk that is in the attic. George retrieved the Trunk but loaded it with lots of books and other heavy materials.

He also locked the trunk. For good measure, he wrapped the heavy trunk with thick powerful chains and placed several pad locks through the chains to make sure the trunk would never accidentally open.

George asked another member of the staff to help him move the heavy trunk with a dolly downstairs and to the small airport landing strip.

While Hillary is flying in a plane with what she believed is Mr. Smith's body in the trunk, George calls a member of our staff, a pilot, to land and pick up Mr. Smith and his luggage. The pilot flew Mr. Smith to LaGuardia airport. The White Hats has a private luxury apartment in New York City waiting for him.

Several months after Mr. Smith stared down at Hillary's severed head, he meets and marries a wonderful woman. They live out the rest of their lives in upper state New York, in the country.

Mr. Smith and his wife live in a very quaint but comfortable house. There is a large flower garden that surrounds the house. Mr. Smith inserted petrified wood as stepping stones through out the beautiful garden. Even though Mr. Smith has access to millions of dollars, he and his new wife opened a small antique shop. The unique shop is full of old relics, paintings and old books.

Their honesty and their reputation within the small community is flawless. They both are very active with charity events. The charities are always grateful to receive anonymous funds from an unknown person.

Mr. Smith and his wife live out their lives in peace, relaxation and having fun with many close and trusted friends.

She's a "Devil in Disguise."

The End

Order my exciting book called “Romantic Illusions”

*As a child, she is kidnapped and forced into the sex trade.
As a grown beautiful woman - her revenge comes easy.
She refuses to forgive or forget.*

Warning: Do not order if you're offended by sexually explicit scenes

Available on Amazon.

If you enjoyed the story you just read, then please leave me a positive review so others will be encouraged to enjoy it as well.

Thank you so much!